

Stream 1 Project – sea&stone

(All images can also be found in the mockups folder on Github)

I started off this project by drawing out some rough mockups as well as goals for the site and user needs (the site was initially called Push The Sky Away). This helped me to figure out how the site should function and what needs it should fulfil.

Homepage

When I first started planning my website, I had initially planned for the homepage to have an image carousel as its main feature. However over time, I found it too distracting so I changed the homepage to just have 3 simple images so the user wasn't overwhelmed when they entered the site and to prevent the site taking a while to load. I wanted to put a big emphasis on the title of the website so I spent a lot of time picking a font that conveyed the look I wanted and then put an emphasis on the ampersand in the title to make it really stand out.

About

I wanted to give some basic info in the about page about sea&stone as well as including the open hours which I often find hard to find on restaurant websites. I looked at other restaurant websites to see what their sites looked like and then settled on a simple picture of a restaurant setting to go on this page as well.

News page

For the news page, I wanted it to look like a blog page almost, lots of little posts that reflected different events and happenings during the year so it was clear that it was a section that was regularly updated. I decided to incorporate some videos to make the site more interactive.

Menu page

For the menu page, again I had decided to have a carousel of the menus as I had seen this on other restaurant websites, however after making it and making the menus, it didn't look right and wasn't very user friendly so I scrapped this and changed to individual PDF, keeping a small image carousel of stylish food photos beside it.

Location page

For the location page, I kept it simple with an embedded Google map of the fictional location as well as the address and parking info.

Contact page

For the contact page, I wanted to include a form where users could leave feedback, book an event or simply ask a question.

Examples of how the contact form must be filled in

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL `https://oheag2.github.io/projectone/contact.html?name=Me+Person&email=me%40place.com&phone=6455312345&comments=hello&event=christmas+par...`. The page features the 'sea&stone' logo and a navigation menu with links to Home, About, News, Menus, Location, and Contact. The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column contains a form titled 'To book an event, fill in the form below (*Required field)'. The form fields are: NAME* (filled with 'Me Person'), EMAIL ADDRESS* (filled with 'me'), YOUR COMMENTS* (empty), EVENT TYPE* (a dropdown menu with options 'Event Summary e.g.', 'Birthday, Christmas Party', and 'Barista Class'), and NUMBER OF GUESTS* (a dropdown menu with options '1-10'). A 'Submit' button is at the bottom of the form. A red error message box is displayed over the email field, stating: 'Please include an '@' in the email address. 'me' is missing an '@'.'. The right column contains 'Contact Details' including phone numbers (021-7001234 or 087-1234567), an email address (bookings@seaandstone.com), and social media icons for Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter. The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the Start button, application icons, and system tray information including the time 12:52 and date 26/11/2018.

This screenshot shows the same 'sea&stone' contact form, but with different input values. The NAME* field is 'Me Person', the EMAIL ADDRESS* field is 'me@place.com', and the PHONE NUMBER* field is 'me'. A red error message box is displayed over the phone number field, stating: 'Please match the requested format. 10 digit number'. The rest of the form, including the 'Submit' button and the 'Contact Details' section on the right, remains the same as in the first screenshot. The browser window and Windows taskbar are also visible, showing the same URL and system information.
